Mondium secures EPC contract with Talison Lithium

Mondium Pty Ltd (“Mondium” or “the Company”), an engineering, procurement and construction (EPC) company, has been awarded a contract, valued at approximately $100 million, with Talison Lithium for the design and construction of a new tailing retreatment processing plant at Talison Lithium’s Greenbushes mine site in the south west of Western Australia.

Subject to the receipt of all final project regulatory approvals, Mondium, as the EPC contractor, will carry out all engineering and design, procurement and site construction. The contract also includes design and construction of detailed earthworks, concrete works, structural, platework, electrical and instrumentation works and controls.

This is Mondium’s largest contract to date and its second with Talison Lithium, following the successful delivery of a new chemical-grade plant feed system at its Greenbushes operations last year.

Mondium Director Bob Osmetti said the award was a testament to Mondium’s strong capability of delivering quality projects.

“We are excited to have been awarded such a significant contract and look forward to continuing our strong relationship with Talison Lithium,” Mr Osmetti said.

Work under the contract is expected to be completed by June 2020.
